

“What drives me is the amazing distinctiveness a carefully farmed vineyard can express when its grapes become wine.”

Assuming variety is the spice of life, blended perfection strikes me as sort of boring. This world already offers enough blended beverages designed to appeal to the widest audience--quirky and individual wines are simply more interesting.

Here at the winery, dealing with so many vineyards and keeping the resulting wines separate can be chaotic: however, every tasting becomes a tour of the unique characteristics a particular site delivers in flavors and aromatics. And because there is so much happening vineyardwise in Santa Barbara County, we'll continue to introduce new wines to you in the next few years-while letting a few old friends go. I remain restless in the hunt for special vineyards. The search for the great vineyard site and the quest to best express its individuality in wine remain a lifelong pursuit.
